Dr. W.H. Walton Named New NJC Academic Dean

Dr. William H. Walton became the new academic dean at Navarro Junior College during a meeting of the board of trustees Thursday afternoon.

Dr. Walton replaces Dr. Samuel Nicholson, who resigned and will assume duties at Mary Hardin Baylor College in Belton.

Walton, 43, received his bachelor's degree from Stephen F. Austin State University, his masters degree from Sam Houston State University and his Ph. D degree from the University of Texas at Austin.

He is presently president of the board of directors of Consortium Border College.

He was a Kellogg Fellow and a Kettering fellow in junior college leadership.

He has been a classroom teacher in Magnolia and Tanball, a guidance counselor for Harris County and a high school principal at Tanball.

He was also student personnel administration for Wharton County Junior College, a research assistant at UT Austin, and for two years was the dean at Texas Southernmost College in Brownsville.

Also employed by the board was David B. Henry, who will replace Robert Busch, who resigned to take a position at the State Home. He will be an English instructor. Henry is a native of McKinney and received his bachelors and masters degrees from Baylor University.

James Robert Cross was employed to teach technical illustration. He is a graduate of Cumby High School and is presently teaching at Commerce. He received his B.A. from East Texas State University and is working toward his masters at ETSU.

Thomas Parris will teach advanced math at NJC. He is a graduate of Baytown High School and received his two degrees from ETSU and is also doing post graduate work. Parris has taught at LaMarque, Sulphur Springs, and one year at Mesquite.

In the new law enforcement department, Dale Ray Moe was accepted to teach. A native of Fargo, N.D., he received his degrees from Northern Arizona University. He has been a policeman in Flagstaff, Ariz., a military policeman at Fort Hood, and a policeman at Waco.

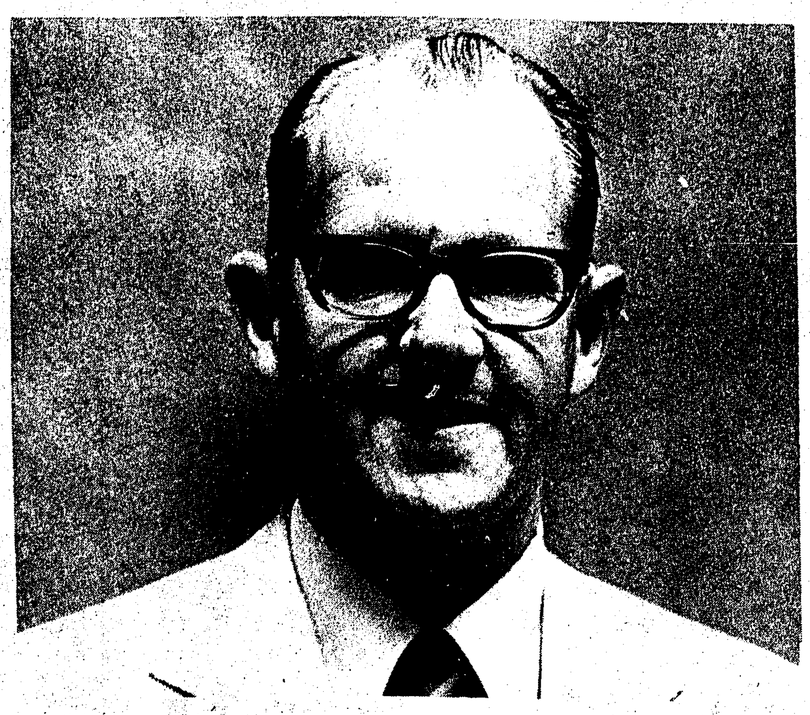

The board also approved the employment of Pat Cuviello as a parttime teacher of medical technology.

All appointments were at the recommendation of Dr. Ben Jones, NJC president.

NJC Rights, Freedoms Policy Approved

By NELL FISHER
Sun Staffwriter

A policy of rights and freedoms, a tuition and fee schedule a faculty schedule and tenure policy, and a statement on equal educational opportunities were approved by the board of trustees of Navarro Junior College Thursday afternoon.

Dr. William H. Walton

The statement on rights and freedoms includes clauses which state that the college has a right to be uniquely itself; the right to be an educational institution; the right to define its own set of value; and the right to make changes. It also includes student rights to equal education, proper academic evaluation, freedom of expression and privacy of records. Under the statement, students are allowed rights of inquiry and freedom; publication, but with certain responsibilities.

The board adopted a tuition and fee schedule calling for $4 per semester hour charges to resident students; $40 per semester hour for out of state students and $14 per semester hour for foreign students.

The legislature's bill however states, that the college had the perogative to charge out of state students who were enrolled in the last spring semester the fees that they were charged at that time. The board accepted a motion to charge them the same fees.

A faculty salary schedule was also approved, beginning this year.

According to the schedule, an instructor's base salary is $900 per month for a nine month period.

An instructor who has a masters degree and no experience will receive $8,100 a year. Instructors will receive increments of $20 per month for 15 semester hours of post graduate work; $40 per month increment for 30 semester hours; $60 per month for 45 semester hours and $80 per month for 60 semesters hours of post graduate work.

They will also receive an increment of $13 per month for each year they have in teaching experience, in addition to the above figures.

In vocational and professional areas, instructors will be paid in a graduated scale beginning with $742 for a an instructor without a bachelor's degree and no experience to $872 for an instructor without the degree and with ten years teaching experience.

With a degree, the instructor could receive from $816 with no experience to $998 with fourteen years of teaching experience.

Along the same lines, the board accepted a modification to the administration handbook stating that instructors should earn at least an average of six semester hours of graduate work each two years after employment until they have met requirements to retain tenure at the college.

According to Dr. Ben Jones, NJC president, the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools generally requires that all academic instructors possess at least 30 semester hours of graduate work beyond the master's degree and at least 60 semester hours of graduate work for a smaller number of instructors in each junior college.

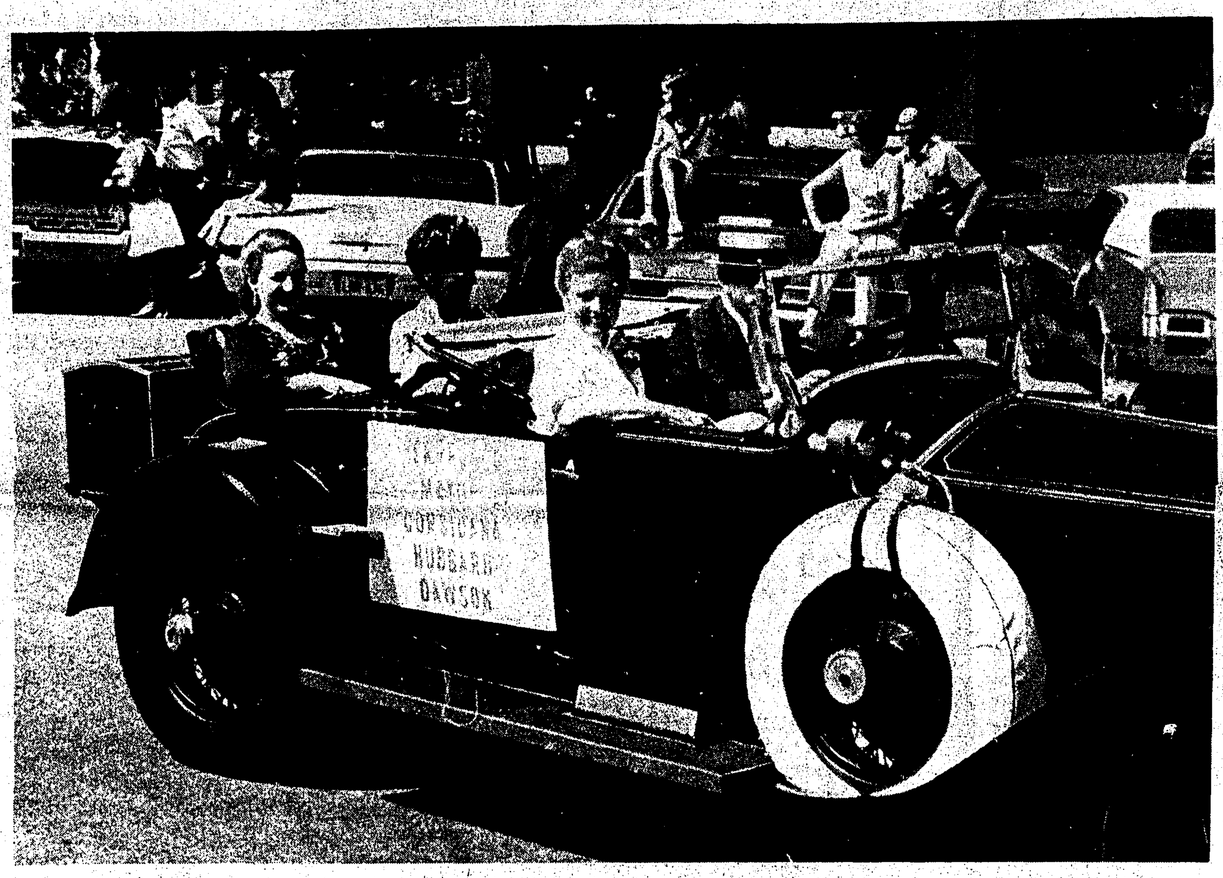

The board also accepted a policy statement on equal educational opportunity, in accordance to a statement issued by the federal Housing, Education and Welfare department.

The statement says that Navarro Junior College "shall not discriminate either in favor of or against any person on account of his or her race, creed, color, or national origin," with respect to admission and education of students, availability of financial aid, employment and promotion of teaching and non-teaching personnel, student and faculty activities, and student and faculty housing on the campus.

A third statement regarding faculty attendance in class was also approved. It stated that teachers should be on time to class; be well prepared; interested in both the students and topics under consideration; and make use of the allotted time to the fullest extent. Teachers should also notify the department chairman or appropriate dean if he is unable to meet with the scheduled class.

The board also approved the recommendation that the college join the Hazlewood-Henson loan agreement, under which the federal government underwrites loans that are overdue in payment to the college.

On Dr. Jones' recommendation, the board gave approval to the college to apply to the coordinating board for off-campus courses to be taught in the surrounding area.

Mayors in Triplicate

2000 Jam Dawson For 90th Affair

Dawsonites, those calling this bustling town home and countless others who returned Saturday and Sunday for "homecoming" coupled with Dawson's birthday anniversary, had so much fun they were threatening one another on the streets to "do it again in five years".

The giant birthday party comes to an official close today following Sunday morning services at 10:30 a. m. at the high school gymnasium. Directing the worship services will be Evangelist Lester Roloff, a former resident now director of the Rebekah Home for Girls in Corpus Christi.

As a special feature, he arranged to have two planeloads of girls flown in from the Corpus Home to provide special music and singing.

Normally populated by 848 happy residents, Dawson was veritably bursting at the seams Saturday as former citizens—and people from neighboring towns who know a good thing when they see it—kep arriving throughout the day.

By parade time at 4 p. m. it was estimated more than 2,000 persons were on hand to witness a sight no other Texas town birthday celebration ever saw—three lady mayors: Dawson's own Mrs. Haden Farmer who had a lot to do with the homecoming's planning; Mrs. Jay Leon from Hubbard and Mrs. Jack Youngblood of Corsicana.

Mrs. Leon and her husband even provided the parade transportation, a shined-up 1925 model Rolls Royce which gave them a "high perch" and made it easier for the thousands lining the streets to see and cheer them on.

"There's never been this many people in town before in the entire history of Dawson," hometowners would exclaim to one another, awed at the turnout and obviously thrilled the birthday anniversary was receiving such enthusiastic response.

An hour before parade time, lady volunteer workers under the huge registration tents estimated that fewer than 1,000 had registered in four books kept going simultaneously. Shortly before the first unit of the parade drove into sight from the north at Fourth Ave. and Main St., the street was a solid mass of humanity as spectators swarmed the main drag like a swarm of locusts.

Registration began at 8 a. m. with Mayor Edith Farmer's official welcome given the party celebrants at 10:30 a. m. from a platform in front of the registration center. This same platform later served as the parade reviewing stand for Postmaster Cloyce Floyd.

Something was planned throughout the day to entertain and occupy the revelers. There were two art exhibits, one in the City Part by Mrs. Kirk Bogle of Waco and the other at the Kendrick Home by Mrs. LaVera McCall, nationally known artist who has on several occasions painted the fields of bluebonnets around Dawson.

Other exhibits of interest were "Past and Present," and "Farm and Home." Tours with transportation provided were conducted throughout the Womach Clock Collection, Old Dawson Home Cemetery, the Springhill Cemetery, the Dawson Plane Crash Memorial Marker, the Child Care Center and Dawson's new Housing Units.

Dawson High School was the focal point of those who wanted a central point to gather and reminisce as they visited "inside" from lunch until near parade time.

Fun and festivity were the order of the day from early morning until very late.

Crowding the evening hours, many unaware they were weary-worn, were a 6 p. m. dinner in the High School gym catered by Ernie's of Greenville "considered by many to be the best," confided Mayor Farmer.

From an enjoyable meal and more visiting and fellowship, the crowds, according to their interest spread out to attend the rodeo put on by the Dawson Saddle Club at 8 p. m., while others exercised a double dance option at 9:30 p. m., one a street dance and the other taking over the gym.

Frost Man New Deputy

Sheriff Rufus Pevehouse has announced the hiring Saturday of Bryan Dunagan, 45, as a new deputy who will be assigned to the Kerens district, filling a vacancy in the department.

Formerly in the auto and cafe business in Frost, he has had schooling in law enforcement and is experienced in classifying fingerprints, Sheriff Pevehouse said.

The 6 foot 6 inch, 275 pound deputy is married and the father of a 12-year-old daughter.

No Quorum At NCAC Meeting

Two important items placed before the Navarro County Action Committee's board of directors for consideration were approved in a "straw vote" Thursday night when the board came up two votes short of having a quorum.

Board Chairman William McKie called for the unofficial vote "so that we can assure (NCAC Executive Director Vacek that we can approve these items by the next meeting." Vacek is faced with a deadline for submitting the two items to the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) that will fall a week before the NCAC board is scheduled to meet again.

With the approval Thursday evening of the two proposals—the budget for versatile OEO program accounts for the coming year and an amendment to the Emergency Food and Medical Program—he may submit the items to the OEO.

McKie assured the voters that the vote was unofficial and that "we all understand that we're going to vote on this in August."

The meeting, held in the county courthouse, was called to order at 8 p.m. Following a roll call of delegates, McKie said that they would hold up the meeting until 8:15 in hopes of getting enough late-arriving members to constitute a quorum. After the 15 minutes had passed, he announced that they were two votes short of a quorum and called for the "straw vote" before adjourning the meeting.

It was the second straight month that the board had been unable to conduct any business due to lack of a quorum. In the June meeting, McKie told the members present that some members may have to be removed from the roll. Many of the board members elected in February have not attended any meeting since their election, he added.

Burglary Charges Filed

Corsicana police have arrested and filed burglary charges against three young men for the weekend burglary of the Sonic Drive Inn. One of the three was also charged with burglary of the private club at the American Club Motel and carrying a prohibited weapon.

Being held in county jail in lieu of bonds of $1,500 each set by Peace Justice W. H. Tipton in whose court charges were filed Sunday by police are: Robert Carl Melton, 22, Dallas; Johnny Ray Nevill, 17, Corsicana; and James Matthews, 18, of Corsicana and Dallas.

Matthews also was charged with burglary of the motel private club and carrying a prohibited weapon, a long bladed knife, with bonds of $500 set in each case.

Police said Matthews had been apprehended by Motel Manager Milo Savage while inside the building and held for arrival of police. Following filing of charges in the case, he was released under bond, but re-arrested Monday after it had been learned during the course of the investigation Sunday of the Sonic Drive Inn burglary that he may have been involved in it with Melton and Nevill.

Douglas Evaluates County

By BETTY JEAN CLAY
Sun Staff Writer

Conceding that Navarro County is not "pushed" as much as the Corsicana school system or the city of Corsicana are for tax revenues for operating needs, County Judge Kenneth Douglas assured the Rotary Club Wednesday "we do stay in a bond, we do wonder where our next dollar will come from" as Commissioners Court operates on a pretty close budget.

Total expenditures of the county last year he related amounted to $3,596,580.06, and he acknowledged that "is a whole lot bigger now than when I became judge." Douglas has been county judge for 15 years now and recently was re-elected to a new four year term. He reminded the club that Memorial Hospital is an agency of the county that is operated by its own board and that last year it had expenditures of $2,674,278.35 and took in $1,022.80 more than it spent, so it could be seen the hospital operated pretty close. The county taxpayers presently are paying $53,000 annually on retiring hospital bonded indebtedness and he speculated by the time it is paid there will be a need for further expansion financed by a bond program.

Judge Douglas said Commissioners Court, in an effort last year to equalize taxes authorized the tax assessor to hire a full-time assessor to equalize the burden to taxpayers brought about by inequitable assessments, with some assessed at 10, others at 15 or even 25 per cent. Noting he had read in the newspaper where Corsicana was contemplating hiring two tax appraisers and approaching the school and county on sharing in the costs and studying going to the method of assessing at 100 per cent of value, Judge Douglas said the county wouldn't go for assessing at 100 per cent.

"To those of you concerned, we wouldn't use 100 per cent and the reason is we collect taxes for the State of Texas and there's not a county that I know of that assesses at 100 per cent," he said. He added that if Navarro county were to use 100 per cent values in assessment it would mean "we would be sending at least five times as much in taxes to the state as any other county percentagewise." He reminded the club the state has been "going out of the ad valorem tax business" at the rate of 5 cents a year, and has gone from 47 cents down to 32 cents presently.

Navarro county last year put into operation a food stamp program, a retirement system program and contributed toward operation of the Family Consultation Center, Douglas said.

Referring to the food stamp program, he acknowledged "some of you might cuss it, a lot of people don't understand it, or don't like it." The judge recalled that a federal court in Dallas issued a ruling that the federal government and Department of Agriculture would make available to all counties a commodities program, and back in the 1960s Navarro county had had a commodities program for a couple of years before becoming dissatisfied with it. The people it was designed to help, he said, didn't like and weren't satisfied with some of the commodities available. Navarro county could have let the government and Department of Agriculture maintain this program and not spend a dime, but he said the Commissioners Court had decided it had rather expend some county money toward the food stamp program than have the federal government come in and direct this program which had already proven unsatisfactory here. Food stamps have represented approximately $40,000 a month in additional purchasing power for those utilizing this program administered by the State Department of Public Welfare.

Judge Douglas said he wouldn't deny there has been some abuse of this program and some people may be buying food stamps who may not be as entitled as others, but he challenged "Any time you hear people cussing it remember, it is either a food stamp program or commodities."

Judge Douglas said Navarro county had found that in order to be competitive with other agencies, state and local, it had to institute a retirement program such as they had "in order to keep our employes and your employes that we spent money to train."

Noting the county had contributed $3,000 last year and this year toward the Family Consultation Center, he expressed belief "it is extremely beneficial not only to the county judge's office but to the county as a whole." He said when it becomes necessary to commit a patient to the state hospital his office is concerned with commitment proceedings.

Gardener's Guide

Don't Slow Down On Garden Chores

By GENE SEARS
County Agricultural Agent

Hot August is no time to slow down with timely and important gardening chores. Long summer days demand long, thorough summer waterings, constant weed control, and continual diseases and insect checks. This month is an excellent time to make plans for future gardening for the months and seasons ahead.

The gardener can grow his own new plants by taking summer cuttings now of those favorites. August heat and humidity will aid cuttings in rooting to develop for fall planting in the landscape.

—Select 4 to 6 inch tips of new growth from healthy plants. Cut the ends of the stems at a slant and place immediately into water.

—Remove all but the upper 3 to 4 leaves from the cuttings and dip the wet ends of the stems into a commercial rooting hormone which will hasten healthy and more abundant roots to form.

—Shake excessive rooting hormone from the ends of the stems, then firm the stems into flats, pots, or rooting beds which contain a loose, sandy organic premoistened soil. Keep the newly made cuttings in shade.

—Wet the cuttings with a fine mist of water and repeat daily. Never allow the cuttings to dry out nor overwater to an excess.

—Cover the cuttings with glass, plastic, or cheesecloth so as to insure humidity and heat. Never expose cuttings to full sun, but keep in a shaded location.

—Roots will form on the cuttings in approximately four to six weeks depending on the variety of plant. Replant rooted cuttings into pots or individual containers and grow in the shade until fall or spring when they may be transplanted to the landscape.

Homeowners need to care for their lawns throughout the summer, even though the mercury may rise and it is easier to stay in front of the air conditioner.

In the summer, St. Augustine grass is often attacked by a soil fungus which causes what is known as "fading out". This is shown by grass dying in irregular patches.

The fungus is always present in the soil, but attacks the grass stolons, runners, only when the plants get in a depleted, weakened condition.

A balanced fertility program with a fertilizer is essential for proper growth of the plants. In addition, proper watering will help. This part of lawn care would seem to be the easiest, but often causes unnecessary problems. The common afternoon sprinkles used by many people often result in a shallow root system that is harmful to the grass. Water the lawn thoroughly and then not water again until the ground needs it.

Proper mowing is also important, especially trimming at regular intervals and at the right height. Many people cut too much of the grass at one time if frequent mowing is not practiced.

We warn against allowing the development of "thatch", that layer of dead grass and leaves that give the lawn a spongy feel. The best way to prevent this problem is to catch the grass clippings when mowing. ealthough it is too late this year, it is best to clip the grass shorter than normal just as growth begins in the spring.

Finally, the proper use of fungicides can help control fading out. Fungicides are to be used in conjunction with the other practices, and not be relied on by themselves. Information on the type and amount of fungicides for ordinary lawn can be obtained by calling the County Agricultural Agent's office in the County Courthouse.

We emphasize that the lawn care program must be a continuing one all during the summer growing season; or so that the lawn grass may be maintained in a healthy vigorous condition all year long.

If summer vacation takes you away for an extended time, be sure your landscape is in order prior to departure.

—Cut lawn grass just prior to leaving and make plans to have it mowed during your absence if necessary.

—Water all plants, lawn and pots well prior to departure.

Sink all pot plants in a cool, shaded garden bed prior to departure so as to conserve moisture and to keep the pots from drying out.

—Cut flowering annuals and perennials so as to encourage new growth and more bloom upon your return.

—Harvest all ripened vegetables to induce future production.

—Be sure insects and diseases are well under control. Apply a preventive application prior to departure.

GARDENING GUIDES CHECKLIST FOR AUGUST:

—Consider planting some late or fall flowering annuals. You may consider colorful Cosmos, Zinnia, Marigold, Periwinkle, Petunia, Portulaca, and others.

—Fertilize Bearded Iris with a low nitrogen fertilizer if you haven't done so since bloom.

Divide Lycoris, fall Spider Lilies, if needed.

—Feed Mums and pinch back bush types to insure good fall blooms. Give them lots of water now as they grow into maturity.

—Prune Hydrangeas if needed. Give a feeding and water well.

—Collect summer seed pods for winter dried arrangements.

—Cut faded blooms from Crape Myrtle which will promote a second bloom.

—Healthy suckers on current tomato plants make good fall plants! Prune suckers off in August and plant deep in prepared soil ... water well and shade location and keep moist.

Peanut Butter Versatile, Popular Lunchtime Treat

By MRS. GLORIA F. HEROD
County Home
Demonstration Agent

PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICHES: One of America's favorite sandwich spreads is made from the Arachis hypogaea. Your kids may not ask for it by that name, but the peanut still provides one of the most popular lunchtime treats in America—peanut butter!

And peanut butter can be combined with a thousand and one things for good eating. All you need is a little imagination and anxious taste buds!

Peanut butter is one of the most nutritionally valuable foods in use today. It is 26 per cent pure protein, and economical at that! The U.S. Department of Agriculture ranks peanut butter high in food energy, fats necessary to maintain body balance, phosphorus, thiamin and niacin in addition to its protein value.

Put your imagination to work, and concoct some peanut butter surprise sandwiches for your gang during August Sandwich Month! Start out with the old favorite—peanut butter and jelly—in a new and different light.

Start out the morning with Doughnut Sandwiches. A very good idea—your family will think so, too—for Sunday morning breasfasts.

Combine ½ cup peanut butter, 1 tablespoon plumped raisins, and 1 tablespoon finely chopped nuts. Cut doughnuts crosswise and put halves together, sandwich fashion with the peanut butter mixture.

PEANUT BUTTER GRILLWICHES

8 slices enriched bread
½ cup peanut butter
8 slices cooked bacon, cut in half crosswise
¼ cup strawberry jelly
Softened butter or margarine

Spread 4 slices of bread with peanut butter and top with 44 pieces (2 slices) bacon. Spread remaining bread with jelly and put on peanut butter slices, jelly side down. Spread outsides with softened butter. Put sandwiches in preheated (medium heat) skillet and cook until golden brown—about 2 minutes. Turn and brown on other side. Makes 4.

You may want to make PEANUT BUTTER AND CHEESE SOUFFLE SANDWICHES a permanent attraction on your luncheon menus when you discover how much fun they are to make, and how good they are to eat!

8 slices enriched white bread
¼ cup peanut butter
2 tablespoons sliced stuffed green olives
4 slices sharp process cheese (4 ounces)
2 eggs
1-½ cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
4 slices tomato

Spread 4 slices of bread with peanut butter. Cover each slice with olive slices, then top each with slice of cheese. Close sandwiches with remaining four slices of bread. Place sandwiches in greased 9-inch square baking pan. Beat eggs well; beat in milk and salt. Pour mixture over sandwiches. Top each sandwich with a slice of tomato; bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F) about 30 minutes, or until tops of sandwiches are lightly browned. Serve hot. Makes 4.

Peanut butter mixes with so many things so well that the possibilities are just endless for sandwich fixin's. After you've tried these easy ideas—simple as ABC—make up your own!

A is for apples and peanut butter! Mix together the following:

1 cup chopped canned apple slices
½ cup finely diced celery
2 teaspoons chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup salad dressing
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Spread 8 slices rye bread with chunky peanut butter. Place apple mixture between slices, adding watercress or lettuce, if desired, and close sandwiches. Makes 4 APPLE-PEANUT BITES.

B is for bacon and peanut butter! Mix together the following:

4 slices crisp-cooked bacon, crumbled
½ cup crunchy peanut butter
2 tablespoons dill pickle juice
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of Tabasco sauce
½ cup finely chopped dill pickle

Spread on 4 slices of fresh brown bread. Close with 4 more slices of brown bread, or white bread for contrast. Cut in half and top with crisp pickle slices. Makes 4 DILLY DELIGHTS.

C is for cheese and peanut butter in these EASY PIZZA-ROUNDS!

Combine:

¼ cup peanut butter
1-3 cup chili sauce
1 tablespoon prepared mustard

On each section of 4 English muffins (split in half and lightly toasted), place a slice of salami or pressed ham. Spread a tablespoon of peanut butter mixture over meat and scatter pieces of Mozzarella cheese over the top. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 8-10 minutes until cheese browns lightly. Yields 8 miniature pizzas.

C also stands for cherries, and a cheerful end to any meal—when they are combined with peanut butter and pound cake! Mix 1-3 cup peanut butter with 1-3 cup cherry preserves. Cut an 8-ounce pound cake into 12 slices. Spread mixture over half the cake slices and close PEANUT BUTTER-CHERRY-WICHES with remaining cake slices. Serve a la mode or with whipped cream. Makes 6.

Bird Dog Trainer Makes His 'Point'

By KIT BAUMAN
Golden Circle Editor

Asking a pro like Mike to just stand there and point while a photographer snapped his picture was like asking Trevino or Namath or Brando to fake it for the sake of the camera. Mike was obviously bored.

A pointer that other pointers admire, Mike hates to merely go through the motions. His tail was sagging and his eyes wandered everywhere but to the caged pigeon in front of him. At his side, the young English setter was a picture from out of a bird dog trainer's manual; his tail erect, his eyes screwed on the bird, he appeared as the type of dog every bird hunter would love to follow into the field.

"Mike's been through this so many times before, he just doesn't care," James Moore was saying. "He's pointed at more caged birds than he can remember. Just like a pro, he only gets excited about the real thing. He knows when he's on."

Moore took a few steps, then leaned over and freed the bird. The English Setter, who answers to the name of Mac, was off like a shot across the field in pursuit of the bird. Mike looked as if he was watching the clouds; nothing in his stance indicated that he even saw the bird fly away.

Moore hesitated for a few moments, as if to make a point that the dog wasn't about to go anywhere. Nonchalantly he reached out and barely touched the dog on the head. Wheeling almost ninety degrees, Mike sprang like a lizard's tongue and dashed off in pursuit of Mac and the pigeon.

Mike is one of the best of the countless bird dogs that Moore has trained in the seven years since he opened his Bird Dog College of Knowledge some ten miles west of Corsicana. The veteran trainer sold Mike to a Dallas woman several years ago for $300. The woman, who renamed the animal Lil's Pride 'n' Joy, began making the rounds of field trials with the dog, cornering so many first place trophies that the price of silver began to climb. She recently turned down an offer of $3,000 for the animal.

Moore has been training dogs all his life. Raised in the Barry community a few miles north of his present home, he had no playmates and turned to dogs for companionship. Asked by a wealthy doctor to train several dogs who had been beaten out in a field trial by a dog he had trained, Moore admitted that he didn't know if he could train dogs to hunt as a means of support. When the doctor offered him a dog school of his own and $500 a month just to care for the doctor's own dogs, Moore decided he'd sure find out if he could make a go of it.

Spurning the doctor's offer in favor of independence, Moore bought the acreage where he still lives and went into business. The proof of his own ability, the point that worried him when the doctor made his offer, is the fact that he can pretty well pick or turn away any owner he wants.

"I turned down one here the other day," he said. "When I took the dog out to the field and showed him a bird, he tucked his tail between his legs and ran off. The dog was just plain scared of birds."

It's a matter of business ethics combined with good dog sense. Good bird dogs are born, Moore contends, and it's a waste of his time and the owner's money to try training a poor dog.

"Why waste six months and hundreds of dollars (Moore charges $75 a month to train a bird dog) when you know you'll end up with a dog that isn't worth a quarter?"

Moore prefers to get a dog from four to six months old. It's true, he smiles, that it's hard to teach an old dog new tricks.

If a dog shows the basic instincts of a good bird hunter, he begins a series of simple lessons designed to capitalize on those instincts. Moore's first step is to teach the dog to retrieve a stick on command.

Holding a young pup on a short leash, he demonstrated. "Fetch, fetch," he repeated, holding the stick under the dog's nose.

When the dog tried to understand what was wanted of him, Moore gently stepped on the pup's foot. When the pup opened his mouth to whine, Moore gently stuck the stick in the dog's mouth. To get the animal to release the stick, Moore said "Give, give," over and over while pinching the dog's mouth.

The stick lessons learned, the dog advances to retrieving a dead bird that has been frozen to preserve it. Next Moore puts the dog to work retrieving live birds that have their wings taped. The live, free birds are the last step.

On the average day, Moore will work with as many as 20 separate dogs, giving as much attention as he feels necessary to each animal's progress. The pigeons used in training cost 15 cents apiece and one dog will go through as many as fifteen before Moore feels the animal is ready to hunt.

Fifteen minutes had gone by since Mike had raced off into the woods. Mac had returned the first time Moore called, but immediate obedience to an order didn't necessarily mean he was a better dog than Mike.

"Mike's been around longer," Moore smiled, "and he knows that I'm over here and he's out there where I can't get him, so he's going to do as he pleases."

Catching a glimpse of the dog running through the brush, Moore stalked off in pursuit. Minutes after he disappeared into the trees where he had last seen the dog, Mike came dashing around the corner of the dog pens. He had circled completely around his trainer who was getting farther away from the dog with each step.

Mike paused long enough to lap up some water from a bucket, then set off in pursuit of Moore. minutes later, they both reappeared, Mike racing back and forth in front of the trainer, as if he were rubbing in his great joke.

("I keep track of my dogs while they're in the field by following on horseback," Moore had said earlier. "If I were to walk after every one of them, I wouldn't have time, or the energy, for more than a couple each day.")

As the two reached the pens, Mike appeared to suddenly tire of the sport and rushed up to squat at Moore's feet.

"OK, Mike, I'm going to forget it this time," Moore said softly, rubbing the dog's neck. Just to show his forgiveness, he tossed a can which Mike cheerfully retrieved.

"If a man likes a nasty, stinking job," Moore said after putting Mike in a pen," he oughta train bird dogs. If I had to do it all over again, I wouldn't do it."

But walking past the pens towards his house, Moore's every step was accompanied by an unholy racket, the barks and howls of eager dogs that leaped at the gates of their pens as he passed. Each dog was trying to get his attention, he remarked.

Name another guy who has the respect and fondness of every one of his charges....

WHICH IS THE $3000 DOG?

Corsicana Cotton Mills Buildings To Be Razed

A familiar Corsicana landmark since the turn of the Century, the Corsicana Cotton Mills, idled the past three years, will soon come tumbling down.

One of the pioneer industries in Corsicana, established in 1904, the mills were closed shortly after control purchased by Bert Nelson, now of Lubbock, members of his family and William B. Robinson in 1968.

As the representative locally of the ownership group, Robinson announced that almost all "above ground buildings and equipment have been sold to B. T. Wright of Bonham."

Under the sale contract, Wright, who is in the lumber and building wrecking business, is to raze all buildings included in the sale by Dec. 31. This includes the old red brick main mill building, numerous warehouses and outbuildings, and 37 of the 43 mill-owned tenant houses that were occupied by mill employes during its hey day.

Excluded from the sale and retained by the ownership group headed by Nelson are the three metal warehouses at the north end of the mill property, the mill office building on S. Main St., and six tenant houses across the street on S. Main from the mill and office building. These six houses have been reconditioned recently for sale to individuals.

The Corsicana Cotton Mills occupied about 24 acres covering some nine city blocks bounded on the north by E. 10th Ave., on the east by S. 9th St., on the south by E. 13th Ave. with a one-block offset further south to E. 14th Ave., and on the west by S. Main St.

"We have no definite plans for use of the property that will be cleared by this demolition work by Wright," said Robinson. He said the owners had been negotiating for several months to interest prospects who might want to put in a new industry, and toward that objective had recently obtained a rezoning to Light Industrial classification on all the mill acreage. Another possibility being explored by the owners he said is in interesting some outside group in putting in a multiple family housing complex, or barring that, building one-family residences in the area if no industrial use materializes for the property.

"By having the grounds cleared of most of the buildings, particularly the 37 tenant houses, we are cooperating with the City government in its program to remove blighted housing and turn this area into something more attractive than what has existed in recent years, he noted.

When Nelson was a resident of Corsicana he first owned and operated the Dr. Pepper Bottling Co., later was associated in ownership of the Collin Street Bakery, before organizing the group which bought the mills property.

Wright is expected to begin the razing of the buildings within 10 days, and removing equipment even sooner.

X-ray Mobile Unit Makes Return Visit

Corsicana's newest directors on the 10-county board of the Dallas Area Respiratory Health Association, formerly the Dallas Area TB Assn., are taking their jobs seriously.

The Association of which this county became a part in 1966 is the organization which sends out to its member counties the Christmas Seal Mobile X-ray Unit offering free chest examinations as a public health service.

The mobile unit will make its return visit to Corsicana this week, setting up on the parking lot of the Navarro Mall Shopping Center Wednesday and Thursday.

Miss Adelaide Robinson and Miss Margaret Roderick took on the responsibility of making local arrangements for the mobile unit's visit and in lining up volunteers to staff the registration desks when they accepted election in April to the Association board.

This assignment previously was handled by Mrs. Rufus Shell whose term expired in April at which time they were elected. Although she is no longer on the board, Mrs. Shell has pledged her interest and services in assisting the two new county board representatives in getting workers and fostering public interest in the community to obtain free X-ray examinations whenever the mobile unit visits are scheduled.

On Wednesday, Association Technician Harry Wells will operate the mobile unit, assisted by volunteers, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. The Thursday schedule will be from 12 noon until 7 p.m. These hours are designed to accommodate working people after the 5 p.m. work day ends.

Wastewater School Grads Lauded as Pioneers

By BETTY JEAN CLAY
Sun Staff Writer

Graduates of a 160-hour wastewater school were lauded as pioneers in mastering the technology to control water pollution by State Representative Jack Hawkins of Groesbeck, who had been the keynote speaker when the school began in April.

The training school was conducted jointly by the Texas Water Quality Board and the engineering extension service of Texas A&M University for water and sewage disposal plant operators in a 50-mile radius of Corsicana.

It met twice weekly for 16 weeks at the National Guard Armory on W. Hwy 31.

Thirty of the original 37 enrollees successfully completed the course Thursday in a "graduation" ceremony in which Rep. Hawkins presented "Technical Operations and Maintenance of Wastewater Treatment Facilities" certificates of proficiency.

Charles Wall, coordinator for A&M University engineering extension service, told the class they were members of the largest such school of about 10 conducted thus far. Similar schools have been conducted at Texarkana, Lubbock, Dennison, Houston, Edinburg, Corpus Christi, Pasadena and Amarillo.

"This has been the most gratifying school so far," said Sam Slaughter, manpower training specialist for the Water Quality Board. "We feel it was due largely to Willard Davis, Corsicana's water and sewer superintendent, who coordinated the arrangements for the school."

While representatives of the state agencies were commending Corsicana for hosting the school and Davis's efforts, City Manager Bob Brockman expressed the city's gratitude to the Water Quality Board, A&M University and the State Health Department for making the opportunity of the training school available to Corsicana and the area.

Attending the graduation program following final examinations given the class members from the State Health Department was Ronald Freeman, Fort Worth, regional engineer.

"Those of you, and the communities you represent are to be highly commended and can consider yourselves pioneers," Rep. Hawkins told the graduates. Acknowledging that the problems of pollution of the environment and water had always been present, Rep. Hawkins noted "the pressures of pollution problems are more keenly felt today than ever before because of increasing awareness on the part of the people. With awareness has come stepped up efforts on the part of many to resolve the problems through technology and trained manpower.

"Somebody has to master the technology to do the job and that is what you here have been training to do. I commend and congratulate you all," the state representative said as he presented the certificates of completion.

Hospital Makes Report for July

The month of July saw 503 patients dismissed from Memorial Hospital from 41 towns in Texas, Oklahoma and North Carolina and one from Port of Spain, Trinidad.

Of the total, 299 were from Corsicana. Besides the one each from Oklahoma City, Okla., and Reidsville, N.C., the others came from the following: Ennis, 46; Kerens, 30; Malakoff, 16; Dawson, 12; Rice, 8; Purdon, 6; Mexia, 9; Frost, 17; Blooming Grove, 6; Barry, Buffalo, Dallas, Emhouse and Trinidad, Texas, 4 each; Athens and Richland, 3 each; Chatfield, Irving, and Wortham 2 each.

Towns from which one patient was registered included: Avalon, Emory, Dickinson, Fairfield, Hillsboro, Hearn, Kaufman, Mabank, Longview, Lancaster, Malone, Mertens, Milford, Oakwood, Powell, Streetman, Teague, Waco, and Winnsboro.

WHO'S NEW

Mr. and Mrs. Billy McManus announce the arrival of a son, Billy Scott, who weighted six pounds, five ounces when he was born July 26 at Memorial Hospital.

Grandparents are Mrs. Frank Lawson of Corsicana, Eugene Lewis of Fairfield and Mr. and Ms. J.W. McManus of Corsicana. Paternal great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. T.M. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. J.D. McManus of Corsicana.

KERENS

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Bates Jr. were here from Pasadena to visit his mother, Mrs. W. P. Bates, and sister, Mrs. Homer Bobbitt.

While visiting her son and family, the Brazil Noble's in Gulfport, Miss., Mrs. Callie Havard suffered a broken arm, and has returned home.

Mmes. Tillman Reed, Drew McClung, of Kerens and Mrs. Loraine and Miss Susan Robinson of Corsicana have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Reed and Traci in Bryan.

Guests of the B. B. Bennets were their daughter and her husband, the George Frockes of Irving.

M. D. Gann has returned to Maywood Manor, after several weeks in Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Whorton and Angela are back, after vacationing several days in Galveston.

Guests of Mrs. M. R. Albritton and the Luther Westbrooks were Mr. and Mrs. Mel Maitland of LaHabra, Calif., and Mrs. W. J. Cuellar of Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bain, Mrs. Carrie McKinney, Mrs. Bob Ford, and Mrs. R. H. Mays were guests of Mrs. Ava Simonds in Dallas.

Whit Scarbrough has undergone surgery at Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Andrew McClung has returned from a visit with the Howell Brister's in Dallas.

VOE Students Being Sought

Miss Winona Stewart, teacher-coordinator of the Vocational Office Education program at Corsicana High School, announced Tuesday that any student wishing to participate in the program may contact her in the high school vocational building, Room 803, any morning this week.

★ Aunt Louise ★

Terry McCluney (Big Four Shoe Store), has returned from a trip to Los Angeles, California on a 747 Luxury Jetliner. It was a graduation trip to visit her Aunt and Uncle, Mr. and Mrs. B. Y. Andrews and their son, Scott.

While in California they visited San Francisco, saw the Golden Gate Bridge, China Town and ate at The Franciscan on the Fisherman's Wharf.

After leaving there on Sunday morning they visited Yosemite National Park. Terry reported that the weather there was beautiful, always comfortable during the day and cool at night. They also took in the sights at the Hanford Fair. They made the return trip to Corsicana by car because they felt they could see more of the country and stop and rest when they wanted to. They enjoyed scenery in Nevada, New Mexico, and other states. She said, "Aunt Louise, it was the greatest vacation ever."

Cathy Ogburn (Kent Feed Store in Powell), writes that she, Mr. and Mrs. Ogburn, son, Gary, are leaving Wednesday morning, August 4th, for Ft. Benning, Georgia. Cathy's husband, P.F.C. Ronnie is graduating from the National Guard Airborne Training School today, Thursday. Afterwards they will return to Roane, where the Ogburn's live. Welcome home, Ronnie!

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Collins and daughter Tina, are visiting in the home of Jerry's parents, his mother Eunace of the G & G Thrift Store, father, Jessie Collins. The Jerry Collins family live in San Antonio. Jerry said, "Aunt Louise, Corsicana sure has changed." Well, progress marches on!

After church last Sunday Edna Pitts called me and invited me out to lunch. After much discussion where we would like to dine we thought a drive in the country would be nice. So we decided to drive over to Malone and eat at the B & E Restaurant owned and operated by Elizabeth and Bill Onstott. The Sunday luncheon was only $1.25 but we had heard so many good things about their Gulf fresh speckled trout that we decided to try that. We were certainly not disappointed as it was delicious. By the way, the folks over that way were just as pleased over the recent rains as we are.

Brother, Tom Hester and wife Esther of Kerens invited me to dinner last Tuesday. (I'm getting lucky). They said my two nieces, Mrs. Guy Jeans, La Porte, Mrs. R. L. Smith and daughter, Linda of Houston, are due in tomorrow, Friday, for a four-day visit. The Hesters said, "If you will promise to come we'll kill the old red rooster and bake a cake." Smile.

Talked to Basil and Travis Coe, S. J. Miles and Charles Barnaby at Miles Furniture Store. They are all excited about their "Turn of the Century Strawberry Patch", a new addition in the store. It is complete with white picket fence, antique sun bleached store front, dark red door brightened with pink and red burlap. The carpet is of fresh spring green Astro-Turf. In the center is an extra long oblong table with a red-checkered table cloth with unusual gifts for all occasions and for your own home.

Unusual kitchen wares featured includes the complete line of Le Creuset Cookware, Alfred Zanger German Cutlery, Enamel Ware from Holland, Copper items from France, Cannister sets, etc. Beautiful and attractive gifts and unusual items are displayed on shelves. One thing in particular that caught my eye was an old time rain barrel laden with artificial strawberries climbing up the sides and on the top. They cordially invite one and all to come in and see their new addition.

Get well soon, Denton Brown, Brown Radiator Service. Everyone misses you.

I'll have several fish stories for you in Sunday's column. In the meantime I hope you get to try your luck and maybe I'll have more than several. O.K.?

'Bye for now, see you Sunday in the Corsicana Daily Sun.

Lots of Tasty Wrinkles in the Chewy Prune

By ALICE DENHOFF

PICK A bonus of good health and fine natural flavor from the supermarket shelf. Take home a package or two of dimpled, pitted prunes and add them to main dish salads for sun-sweetened flavor, delightful chewy texture, Vitamin A, iron, and other vital minerals.

Want some ideas along these lines? Then prepare:

PRUNE-CANTALOUPE SALAD

1 cup pitted prunes
1 pound cottage cheese
¼ cup milk
2 cantaloupes, halved and seeded

Reserve 4 prunes for garnish; finely snip the rest. Combine snipped prunes with cottage cheese and milk; mix well. Put generous scoop of mixture in center of each cantaloupe half and top with a whole prune. Makes 4 servings of a healthful and delicious main course salad.

Next is a more ambitious salad, one with surprising flavor, texture and color contrast.

This recipe is for 6 to 8 servings of an interesting:

PRUNE-TUNA SLAW

1 cup pitted prunes, halved
½ cup French or Italian style salad dressing
1 can (13 ounces) tuna fish (or 2 7-ounce cans)
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 cups coarsely grated cabbage
3 hard-cooked eggs, diced
2 tablespoons minced chives
½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup sour cream

Combine prunes and salad dressing and let stand about 2 hours, stirring occasionally. Drain tuna and separate into chunks; sprinkle with lemon juice.

In a serving bowl, combine prunes with remaining ingredients and mix well. Lightly stir in the tuna chunks.

Now for a light and delectable:

PRUNE-PINEAPPLE SUPPER SALAD

1 cup pitted prunes
2 small ripe pineapples
2 cups diced cooked chicken or ham
½ cup mayonnaise
Salt and pepper to taste

Reserve 4 whole prunes for garnish; finely snip the rest. Cut pineapples in lengthwise halves, retaining the green frond on each half. Cut out pineapple meat, core and dice. Combine snipped prunes, diced pineapple meat, chicken or ham, and mayonnaise. Mix well, season to taste.

Pile into pineapple shells and garnish each with a prune. Makes 4 servings.

DICED prunes give a chewy texture to a cottage cheese filling for cantaloupe served as a refreshing summer lunch.

PUBLIC INJURIES LEAD

It is true that more accidents occur at home than anywhere else, but the more serious accidents are public ones, occurring at the rate of 8 per 1,000 employes per year compared with 4½ per 1,000 at home.

KERENS

KERENS (Spl.)—Mr. and Mrs. Terry Bracken and daughter of Houston are here visiting her parents, the R. R. Sheltons, and grandmother, Mrs. George Stamps, who is a patient in Memorial Hospital.

Miss Sherry Bruner was among those attending the Baylor University Camp at China Springs. Greg Bruner of Stephenville, visited his grandmother, Mrs. V. D. Bruner, while his sister Gwen also attended camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe E. Wilson, Nancy and Scott, are home after a visit with his sister and brother-in-law, the James Balls, in Livermore, Calif. Their mother, Mrs. Era Wilson, who has spent the past several months with the Ball's, returned home also.

Mrs. Opal Cooper of Corsicana is spending a part of her vacation from Memorial Hospital with Mrs. Hattie Stockton.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul West were in Houston for a visit with their daughter, Brenda, and with Mrs. Laura Ware.

Rev. and Mrs. Relda Woodson have returned to their home in Columbus, Miss. after being a guest of the H. J. Newsoms.

Mrs. Clyde Beck and John Beck were business visitors in Dallas.

Fred Hulan is recuperating in Medical Arts hospital Dallas after surgery last week.

Kathy Hilliard and Larry Burden were guests of Larry Hilliard and Mr. and Mrs. Royce West in Ft. Worth.

Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor of Austin and Mrs. Anna Douglas of Athens were guests of Mrs. J. B. Coates.

Guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Seale were Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lilly of Canberra, Australia whom the Sealies met while on a tour of that country recently. Visiting several of the major cities, the Lilly's were interested in every phase of life in the United States, and especially were glad to visit in an American home, and to see the Seale and Simmons Ranch, and others in the area.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Sullivan are enjoying their annual visit with their daughter and family, the Gordon Rode's, in Baldwinsville, N.Y.

Mrs. Terry Pringle of Corpus Christi has been a guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Weston Wallace.

For the third consecutive summer, Mrs. Diane Coates Lang, Kerens elementary school teacher, is serving as a member of the faculty of the Publications Workshop, sponsored by the Journalism Dept. at Texas A&M University.

It's Lamb on the Grill for a Change of Pace

By ALICE DENHOFF

WE'RE A nation not only of beef eaters, we go heavy on lamb, too. At the meat market you will see lamb that comes from New Zealand, part of the Antipodes, the world's greatest sheep-producing area.

New Zealand lamb comes to us in those hard-to-find racks, some as small as 1½ pounds. These small, delicate, tasty racks are so easy to handle at an outdoor grill or in an oven broiler, and cook up juicy and full of flavor. Larger racks may be cut into chops and marinated in an herb-seasoned dressing for something new.

SAVORY BARBECUED LAMB RACKS

3 lamb racks, 1½ pounds each
1 envelope (1⅜ ounces) onion soup mix
1 cup boiling water
½ cup apricot preserves
½ cup chili sauce
2 tablespoons oil

Have meatman saw through chine bone between chops for easy carving. Thaw racks if frozen. Remove fell (thin outer skin) and score fat.

Broil racks 6 inches from heat, on charcoal grill or in oven broiler, fat side down. Cook 25 minutes.

Meanwhile, stir onion soup mix into boiling water in a small saucepan. Add remaining ingredients. Heat at side of grill or on top of range.

Turn racks and broil 15 minutes; brush with sauce and broil 5 minutes longer. Serve remaining sauce with meat. Makes 6 servings.

HAWAIIAN-STYLE BARBECUED LAMB RACKS

2 lamb racks, 1½ pounds each
1 cup water
2 tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons pineapple preserves
1 garlic clove, crushed

Prepare lamb racks for broiling as in recipe above. Broil racks 6 inches from heat, on charcoal grill or in oven broiler, fat side down. Broil 25 minutes.

Meanwhile, combine remaining ingredients in small saucepan. Heat at side of grill or on top of range.

Turn racks and broil 15 minutes, brush with sauce and broil 5 minutes longer. Serve remaining sauce with meat. Serves 4.

For a new dimension in lamb chop flavor, try:

HERB-BARBECUED LAMB CHOPS

6 double rib lamb chops
½ cup wine vinegar
½ cup oil
1 garlic clove, crushed
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon marjoram
½ teaspoon basil
½ teaspoon pepper

Arrange chops on a large plate. Combine remaining ingredients (or use ½ cup bottled Italian-style dressing). Pour mixture over chops. Turn to coat both sides and let stand about 1 hour.

Broil about 4 inches from heat, on charcoal grill, or in oven broiler, about 10 minutes for each side for medium done meat. Makes 6 servings.

RACKS of tender spring lamb are brushed with a savory fruity sauce in an exciting variation for summer cookout.

Home Hints

Bank on Freezing

By MRS. GLORIA F. HEROD
County Home
Demonstration Agent

FIG PICKLES:
4 quaers firm-ripe figs
3 cups sugar
2 quarts water
2 cups sugar
3 cups vinegar
1 tablespoon whole cloves
1 tablespoon whole allspice
2 sticks cinnamon

Peel figs. (If unpeeled are preferred, pour boiling water over figs and let stand until cool; drain.) Add 3 cups sugar to water and cook until the sugar dissolves. Add figs and cook slowly 30 minutes. Add 2 cups sugar and vinegar. Tie spices in a cheese cloth bag; add to figs. Cook gently until figs are clear. Cover and let stand 12 to 24 hours in a cool place. Remove spice bag. Heat to simmering; pack hot into hot jars, leaving ¼-inch head space. Adjust caps. Process pints and quarts 10 minutes in boiling-water bath. Yield: about 8 pints.

FREEZING FIGS: Select soft-ripe fruit. Make sure they have not become sour in the center. Sort, wash and cut off stems. Peel if desired. Halve or leave whole. Treat for discoloration (Use ½ teaspoon ascorbic acid per quart of syrup or use ten 100 milligram tablets for each quart of syrup.) Freeze without sugar or cover with a cold syrup made from 2½ cups sugar to 4 cups water.

BANK ON FREEZING: Your food freezer is the most expensive storage space in your kitchen. You can keep the cost within bounds with proper use, but carelessness may add considerable cost to every pound of food that is stored.

If the freezer is used like a bank for just food storage, the cost per pound of food stored will be high; however, if the freezer is used regularly, like a bank checking account, the operating costs will be spread over more food and the cost per pound will be much lower.

Keep a careful watch over the kind of food that is put in the freezer. High cost foods bought as a "bargain" can mean quite a saving, but finding a bargain large enough to warrant high cost freezer space is a challenge.

Letting food get too old in the freezer is particularly wasteful. No matter how low the cost, if food is thrown away, there is no bargain.

Make sure you follow the "first in, first out" rule to help keep food loss to a minimum.

Your freezer can be a faithful servant and it can save time and effort, and in exceptional instances, it may save you money and can help you feed your family well. However, if the freezer is used incorrectly, you will find that the food freezer is a very expensive servant.

For Food Freezing information and maintenance of the Home Freezer, call the County Extension Service, telephone 874-4778.

LEMON DROPS: If a few drops of lemon juice are required for a recipe, just stick a fork in one end of a lemon and squeeze out the needed juice instead of cutting the whole lemon in half.

POISONING FIRST AID GUIDE: An informative guide that everyone should have in their camping gear is L-696. This leaflet gives information on what to do if one inhales poison, swallows poison, gets poison in the eyes and other information. Call or come by the county agent's office for this bulletin before you go on a trip or before you start to use chemicals around the house.

BACK-TO-SCHOOL SAFETY: Brighten the pedals of your child's bike with reflector tape. This will help to protect them when they are out in the late evening.

RAINY DAY CASSEROLE: If you are interested in a tasty new dish try this idea: 2 pounds fish fillets (fresh or frozen); 1 can cream of tomato soup (10¾ ounces); 2 tablespoons chopped onion; ¾ teaspoon salt; pepper to season; 1 cup grated cheese; 1 baking dish or pan (about 12x8x2 inches); if the fish fillets are frozen, let them thaw. Heat the oven to 350 degrees. Cut the fish fillets into 6 servings. Rub the baking dish well with fat. Put the fish in the baking dish. Mix the soup, onion salt, and pepper. Spread the soup mixture over the fish. Sprinkle the grated cheese over the soup mixture. Bake the fish for 25 to 30 minutes or until cooked. Test the fish with a fork. The fish is cooked when it falls apart easily. Serves 6.

County Approves HOTCOG Communications Network

By KIT BAUMAN
Sun Staff Writer

The county commissioners agreed Monday morning to pick up the $4,859 tab for installation of equipment linking Navarro County with the HOTCOG communications network.

Navarro County's share is approximately 25 per cent of the total cost of $11,821 for the system. The remaining 75 per cent is to be paid by the Criminal Justice Council.

Additional equipment — an extra walkie-talkie and a pair of mobile units — for the system was voted for following approval of the county's portion of the bill.

Equipment included in the HOTCOG network "package" are two remote control consoles, a speed call encoder, six mobile units and a pair of walkie-talkies. The county will also share with Corsicana the 25 per cent cost of necessary backbone equipment for the network, estimated to total $12,761.

In other business, the court heard a request from George Grimmett of Milford for help in gaining access to county tax records dating back to the early 1900's.

Grimmett, who owns approximately 22 acres of land near Barry, was seeking information on total taxes paid by his family on the land that he says entitle him to a reimbursement from the state.

The land in question is part of several sections near Dawson and Barry that is owned by the state. A bill passed in the 1970 session of the state legislature eased the requirements for land-owners to gain clear title to previously state-vacated land.

The state has never sold or relinquished the land; Shell Oil Co. leased sections of the land a few years ago and discovered that the state retained title to much of the leased areas.

Part of the 1970 bill entitles land-owners to a rebate on taxes paid over the years by those persons who had erroneously thought they held clear title to the state-owned land.

According to state law, change of land title must come only from the state of by Spanish land grant.

County Judge Kenneth Douglas advised Grimmett to seek an estimate on the value of the land in question and said that the court would discuss the matter with the county tax office before reaching a decision. A 1968 appraisal of the land pegged the acreage value at $197.50 per acre, Grimmett said, while surrounding non-state-owned land was selling at about $125 an acre as recently as 1962.

Judge Douglas also announced to the court that $46,557 from the County and District Road Indebtedness Bureau, will be credited to the county's account on Sept. 1. The total, given to Navarro County by the state agency, represents a reduction of approximately $3,000 that reflects the county's population loss since 1960.

City Approves New Tax Assessment System

By BETTY JEAN CLAY
Sun Staff Writer

Recommendations from the Board of Equalization that the city begin next year a complete reappraisal of all taxable property by hiring two appraisers for the tax office and that it adopt 100 per cent of value with a lower tax rate were accepted by the City Commision Tuesday.

Dr. L. E. McGary, equalization board chairman, appeared in support of the board's sweeping recommendations outlined to the Commission by letter several weeks ago, and stressed that in the board's opinion the most pressing needs concerned the Commission's endorsement of the Ehrenborg Appraisal (formula) System of 1964-65, updating costs to current building figures, hiring two appraisers to begin work, and simplifying the assessing process and making it more understandable to the public by assessing on the basis of 100 per cent.

In the past Corsicana has used as the basis a ratio percentage of 62½ per cent of market value at 1965 building costs and set a tax rate on the $100 valuations that would produce sufficient revenues to meet budget requirements.

The tax rate last year was $1.25 and preparations for the new year's budget is projected on continuing that same rate on a percentage of 62½ per cent.

"If we went to 100 per cent of card value for assessment value and dropped the tax rate," Chairman McGary explained, "it would go down to about 80 cents (on the $100 valuation) and the taxpayer would be paying the same tax bill as he would using 62½ per cent at a $1.25 rate."

"The 62½ per cent is a most confusing figure to most people. We feel it would be better understood if on the basis of 100 per cent and it would be simpler to compute," the chairman said.

At present, the tax office has to compute a tax bill in two computations, first finding the card value from the Ehrenborg formula and applying the 62½ per cent ratio basis, then multiplying that figure by the adopted tax rate, in the present case $1.25. By using 100 per cent value as the assessing basis, only one computation would be needed to multiply the rate.

The equalization chairman reiterated the board's belief that the 45 days now allotted the board is not sufficient time to evaluate all the city's tax accounts and equalize. He pointed out about 80 per cent of Corsicana's property is on the Ehrenborg Appraisal System and said the 1971 Board of Equalization had concerned itself with trying to get the other 20 per cent on this system so all property would be treated alike in arriving at equitable taxes being paid by all.

The board recommended the city undertake a 4-year schedule in completing re-appraisal of all property, hiring two appraisers who would work toward appraising one-fourth of the property a year for the next four years until the entire town had been covered.

Commissioner H. R. Stroube Jr. asked the Commission if it went to the 100 per cent assessment value and lowered the tax rate to 80 cents next year, could the City Commission in the future "go back up on the rate?" City Manager Bob Brockman and City Attorney Don Pevehouse answered that the rate could be increased up to a limit by city charter of $1.29.

Commissioner P. D. Fullwood brought out, however, with Chairman McGary that Corsicana has had the ability for years to fluctuate both the tax rate below the maximum $1.29 by the percentage of market value it chose for the basis of assessment. If Corsicana had needed to raise X-number of dollars from taxes and hold the tax rate at $1.25 it could do it by raising the assessment ratio from 62½ to 75 per cent, 80, or up to the maximum.

Fullwood pointed out that by accepting the Board of Equalization recommendations the city wouldn't actually be rasing anyone's taxes, just the method of computation. In his motion to go to the 100 per cent basis he included provision that the 1971-72 tax rate be dropped to "an equivocal figure" to 80 cents or 79 cents if that's what it figured out to. Calculating quickly with pencil and paper, Commissioner Fullwood noted that a $10,000 house at 62½ per cent and $1.25 tax rate meant a tax bill of $78.13. Taking the same house at 100 per cent value and a tax rate of 80 cents on the $100 valuation would mean a tax bill of $80. He explained to fellow members that was his reason for stating in the motion that in going to 100 per cent ulue basis the next year's tax rate be lower to an equivocal figure.

On the vote, Commissioner Stroube said said he voted "no" because of the 100 per cent basis because he thought the voters ought to be aware that in the future their taxes could be raised.

Other recommendations from the Board of Equalization were left pending. They involved suggestions the city give thought to computerizing the tax office. that Corsicana bring its cost figures used in issuing building permits be brought more into line with cost figures and market values in arriving at tax assessment so that this data coming from the building inspector's office to the tax office will be more meaningful.

School Board Disapproves Half of Integration Plan

By NELL FISCHER
Sun Staff Writer

The Corsicana School Board Monday rejected two parts of a proposed four-part plan to satisfy integration guidelines suggested by the Dallas office of the federal department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The decision was announced about 2 p.m. Monday following a closed-door session of the Board.

Two other provisions of the plan had already been accepted for implementation during the 1971-72 school term.

Two parts which will be used are boundary changes between Lincoln, Travis and Sam Houston Elementary schools and reassignment of teachers to different schools to meet Singleton Case requirements.

The third and fourth parts, which will not be implemented, are majority to minority student transfers and cooperative exchange learning centers.

Under the first plan, students who are in the majority race at a school may ask for transfers to a school in which their race is in the minority.

CELC centers would mean concentrated learning centers in each elementary school, with students being bussed to the centers from their individual schools and then returned to their original stations.

Two reasons were given for the decision, strong public sentiment against the plans and a tight financial condition, said Joe Seale, superintendent of schools.

In the statement, Seale commented "I see no educational value in causing an elementary age pupil to ride a bus for two hours or more each day when a school is within walking distance of his home ... I continue to invite any qualified educational consultant team to establish that the opportunity for a quality education in one of the local elementary schools is inferior to that in any one of the other elementary schools."

Seale also announced that the board reviewed the preliminary school budget and approved the state teacher raise and the continuance of $350 of local money that goes to each teacher.

He noted that this budget was the tightest in recent years because the school was operating in an inflationary economy and without a local tax raise.

Teacher contracts are to be mailed this week.

The preliminary budget involves a grand total expenditure of $3,115,775.76, with $94,341.60 for administrative purposes, and $2,310,383.80 allowed for instruction, including salaries.

Final approval of the budget is expected to come at the regular board meeting July 16. The board will also hear a second reading on the boundary changes and discuss a student behavior code.

City Holds Informal Budget Session

City officials held an informal work session Tuesday following adjournment of the regular City Commission meeting to give further study to shaping up the 1971-72 budget and planned still another work session next Monday night at 7 p.m.

At Tuesday's work session Fire Chief Charlie Tieman submitted his recommendations for differentials in salary for the department's classification system as an incentive to strive for higher rank.

Chief Tieman told city officials the differential in pay for stepups in rank is so small it offers little or no incentive for the added responsibility a man takes on in a higher classification.

He said that pay by classifications should be the same for the police and fire departments, the only city departments under civil service with a classification system. Chief Tieman said police are paid more per month.

Mayor Sue Youngblood said Police Chief Don Massey would be accorded an opportunity at the next work session to discuss recommendations regarding his department.

At their first work session July 28, City Manager Brockman submitted a tentative budget of $2,242,202 which carried a recommended blanket raise of 5 per cent for all employes, excluding himself. During the session, Mayor Youngblood declared they would go into executive session and requested Manager Brockman and the Daily Sun reporter present to leave temporarily, which both did.

After the closed-door session, Brockman emphasized anew that the City Commission needed to keep in mind what Corsicana is going to do about improving its sewage disposal plant as it had committed itself to the Texas Water Quality Board; they need to give consideration to a request for an appropriation by the Family Consultation Center and they need to give consideration to requests that new restrooms be constructed in Community Park.

By law, Corsicana must hold a public hearing on its proposed budget in September in advance of adoption prior to Oct. 1, start of the next fiscal year.

The city manager was asked to arrange another conference this week, if possible, with L. C. Carlton, engineer and superintendent of the Trinity River Authority's waste disposal division, to explore further with him costs factors and modifications to the disposal plant.

School Edition August 11

By the time Aug. 23 rolls around, several thousand Golden Circle youngsters will have returned to the classrooms as the 1971-72 school year gets under way.

Daily Sun staffers have been pounding the pavements for several weeks now, talking to teachers, school administrators and superintendents, all in preparation for a special Back-to-School edition that will roll off the presses Aug. 11. Included in the special section will be information on enrollments at Golden Circle schools, changes in curriculums, old and new teachers, innovations in teaching, and many other interesting bits of news for students and their parents.

An additional 19,000 copies of the Aug. 11 Daily Sun will be mailed to residents throughout the Golden Circle in addition to the regular circulation copies.

Area Rain Recorded

Corsicana recorded less than one-tenth of an inch of rainfall over the twenty-four hour period since 7 a.m. Monday as the summer cold front that dumped rain over much of the state last week had almost cleared the area.

Monday's rainfall brought the year's total for Corsicana to 14.78 inches, barely ahead of last year's total on this date of 14.42 and far behind the 1969 total of 22.41 inches.

Ennis reported the largest three-day total in the Golden Circle with nine-tenths of an inch Tuesday morning. The showers slacked off considerably in other areas as well, with Dawson recording about .8 of an inch, Fairfield .2, Mexia .11, Malakoff .4, and traces in Trinidad and Kerens.

According to the Associated Press rainfall amounts went as high as 9.85 inches in five and one-half hours at Robstown, 17 miles west of Corpus Christi.

Other deluges hit much of South Central and Southeast Texas, continuing into today, while showers and thunderstorms surged through the state's north central and northeast sections. Skies were clear-half hours at Robstown, 17 miles west of Corpus Christi.

Other deluges hit much of South Central and Southeast Texas, continuing into today, while showers and thunderstorms surged through the state's north central and northeast sections. Skies were clearing, meanwhile across most of West Texas.

Still more showers were expected over the east half of the state.

Reporting streets were flooded, editor Carroll Keach of the Robstown Record said Monday night, "I can't get downtown even in a pickup built for high water."

Keach's memory reached back farther than the last tropical storm in his area. He described it as the heaviest rain since Hurricane Beulah in 1967 left parts of the Lower Rio Grande Valley awash for weeks.

Corpus Christi itself measured 7.80 inches of rain, with 6.70 recorded in two hours late Mor.ay and unofficial reports of as much as 8 inches.

More than 5 inches fell at Laredo and 4.50 inches at Cotulla as the larger amounts generally soaked areas south of a line from Del Rio to near Marshall.

Before the downpours began tapering off this morning, the National Weather Service warned against possible flash flooding in Nueces County west of Corpus Christi.

Another flash flood alert went out before dawn for low sections in and around San Antonio as moderate to locally heavy showers descended.

Nearly continuous rain over East and South Texas and overcast skies in most other parts of the state helped keep temperatures fairly mild Monday, although top marks went as high as 93 degrees at Brownsville and McAllen.

Light Rain Hits Area

Rain clouds pushed into Southeast Texas early Tuesday, trailing light showers across the Golden Circle.

Corsicana recorded .17 of an inch during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. Tuesday to push the year's total to 14.95 inches, still barely ahead of last year's total at this date of 14.89.

Mexia was hit by a sudden afternoon shower that dumped 1.62 inches on the area in less than an hour. A similar shower struck the eastern portion of Cedar Creek Lake, but elsewhere in the Golden Circle rainfall was light.

Fairfield, to the east of Mexia, registered two-tenths as the showers swept to the north and east of the town.

Hubbard ended the day with a trace as did other towns in the general area—Blooming Grove, Barry and Dawson.

Police Widening Drug Information Program

The Corsicana Police Department is preparing now to widen its public information program on drug abuse and soon will have in hand some 2,000 copies of a booklet, "A Trip To Nowhere", for distribution the the schools and service clubs.

Police Chief Don Massey announced Tuesday the department has contracted with Community Information Service Co. of Dallas to furnish Corsicana with 2,000 of the books which have received enthusiastic response in creating awareness on the part of a local community of the problems of addicitions not only to drugs but those habituated to alcohol.

Chief Massey said two representatives of the Community Information Service Co., were to begin Tuesday a telephone solicitation among Corsicana business firms for sponsored advertisements in the book which will defray costs of publication and making the books available for local distribution.

"We intend to distribute the books in our schools, to service clubs and to use them as source materials in programs members of the Police Department will present before groups on the dangers of drug and alcohol.

representatives of the book's publishers to solicit paid advertising in this book. A simple line listing of a business as a 'community sponsor' will be $10 and a line listing name and address of an advertiser as a back cover 'executive sponsor' will cost $15," Chief Massey explained.

The 20-page book is dedicated to the prevention of some of the tragedies of ignorance of both the adult and youth community, but particularly to orienting to the dangers of abuse youth who are so vulnerable.

It contains helpful information on how to fight back against drug abuse by defining narcotics in a "drug glossary" and through a detailed "guide" to some drugs which are subject to abuse. The book details the "alpha drugs"—cocaine, opium and its derivates, morphine, herpin; the "beta drugs"—alcoholic intoxicants; the "gamma drugs"— emphetamines and barbituates, phenobarbital, bromides, glue, etc.; and "delta drugs"—hallucinogens and their derivatives and compounds: marijuana, LSD, acid.

Chief Massey said he feels this informational type program will tie in with the drug education program Texas schools, the particularly those in Corsicana, are beginning this school under a new state law.

Auditors Hired By City

Submission of Corsicana's application for re-certification of its Workable Program by the Federal Government was approved Tuesday by the City Commission.

City manager Bob Brockman said the Workable Program is a plan or guideline whereby the city sets forth what improvements it contemplates making and what progress it has made toward updating and enforcing its codes. Certification may make the city eligible to receive certain federal grants.

He pointed out Corsicana has had a Workable Program for four years now, and the guide comes up for certification at two-year intervals. The program's certification expired in June.

Commissioners approved the hiring of Wilcox, Pattillo and Brown to make the audit of the city's financial statements at a fee of $5,900. Manager Brockman said this was an increase of $275 over what the firm charged last year. This firm has done Corsicana's auditing for several years.

At his request, Brockman was authorized to seek bids for putting a new roof on the city mainteance barn estimated to cost $2,000.

Brockman informed the Commission he will re-advertise for two police cars authorized in this year's budget. Earlier, no bids were received in response to the city's advertisment due to the manufacturers being in the "change-over" process of new car models and local dealers couldn't make deliveries.

City Attorney Don Pevehouse informed the Commission that effective Sept. 1 Corsicana will begin having to levy costs of $2.50 in city court cases upon convictions in misdemeanor cases.

Pevehouse said notification came in a letter from the Comptroller of Public Accounts that the last Legislature had passed a bill requiring Texas courts to begin assessing court costs. This is to create a special fund known as the Criminal Justice Planning Fund to provide state and local funds under Public Law 90-351, known as the Ominibus Crime Control & Safe Streets Act of 1968 as amended.

The city attorney said the letter from Comptroller Robert S. Calvert pointed out that cities will begin remitting court costs to the state quarterly as of Oct. 1, and that cities may retain 5 per cent of the court costs assessed locally as a service fee for collection.

At present, Corsicana's Corporation Court levies a fine, with no provision for assessing court costs.
